“ I remember when I was a little girl. Uncle Carl and Aunt Thelma would come to visit and I would tell uncle Carl that I had one of his horses. He would ask me where it was at and I would go get my daddy's wallet and get the picture of him and his horse out and show it to him. I remember how he looked with the big old smile on his face. Uncle Carl will always be with me in heart and mind. Love you Uncle Carl.##imported-begin##Vickie (Anderson) Grayson##imported-end##

“ We lived across the street when Carl got his first horse. It was a huge animal and Carl was afraid to ride it at first. So each evening he would put a lead on it and walk it for exercise. But the horse was so big, it usually appeared to be pulling Carl along. We called it "the horse walking Carl".
