“ Justin and Dakota,
I was very sorry to hear of your mother's death. I did not know her personally, but I am sure that I saw bits of her every day that you both came in my classroom. She must have been a wonderful person, and I know that you will miss having her in your daily life. Because I lost my father many years ago, I would like to suggest two things to you. First, don't be afraid of crying and being sad. What kind of life would your mom have lived if you didn't miss her, if you didn't care that she wasn't here with you now. Cry when you want and as much as your want. Even though my dad has been gone for 30+ years now, on occasion, I still cry. Second, I encourage you to get a notebook and write down your memories about her--happy things, sad things, funny things, anything that you can remember. As your mind gets older, it gets more cluttered and stressed, and you will tend to forget things. When you have children, your writings will let your children see their grandmother through your eyes. It will be something precious to them. If you never have children, it will be a source of comfort and happiness to you. It will be difficult to do, at first, but I think it will be worth it. Once again, please accept my condolences. If there is anything I can do for you, help you with, please feel free to contact me (marybeemee@aol.com). I will keep you both in my daily prayers. Sincerely, Mary Beth Price (Mrs. Price, your 8th Grade English teacher)
