“ I met Roy because we both worked at Telecheck years ago. In the beginning he was Ann's friend. Daniel's friend. Lawanda's friend. It wasn't until we'd both left Telecheck that I became friends with Roy. He was such a character. He loved his old music, his old T.V. Shows, his piano. He'd be watching Hazel or Lucy when I called or messaged him. We'd talk about cooking and food. Old movie stars. Bird watching. Winning the lottery some day. He had wisdom and a great sense of humor. I'd call him an old bear and he'd laugh. I'd try to get him to listen to music made after 1960 and he'd just ignore me. Above all, he loved Elvis. I'm sad, gonna miss him, but we had good times together. For that, I'm grateful. God rest your beautiful soul, Roy. I hope you got the very best seat at that Waffle House in the sky.
